

We seek talented people To become valued members of our Team.

There is no doubt that Deloitte's greatest assets are the people it employs. With the average age of 32, our young staff is comprised of many talented individuals, majority of whom pride themselves on both domestic and international professional certificates. Our team is widely believed to be among the most able and proficient in the region, making us a very proud market leader. We are well aware of the efforts we invest when choosing future employees, as we do not just recruit them from the existing labour pool on the market. Instead, we have taken the long road and worked diligently and constantly over the past decade to develop our employees' skills, by tailoring and implementing professional training programs that have included on-the-job training both domestically and abroad. Our combined efforts have built our professional expertise and established our market dominance.
